MRS. E. ROEMER DIES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Elizabeth Roemer, nee Baranz who has been a long sufferer and confined to her home in Orland township for over two years with an incurable ailment, died Monday morning.

The deceased was born July 8, 1893 in the town of Orland, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Baranz.

On June 10, 1916 she was united in marriage with Edw. Roemer of Orland township. To this union two sons and a daughter were born.

About two years ago Mrs. Roemer was stricken with an incurable malady and suffered greatly during her long illness, carried her affliction with Christian fortitude.

Surviving are the husband, two sons, Elmer and Alvin, one daughter Helen; her mother Mrs. Pauline Baranz one sister Mrs. Geo. Meyer, Cooper Grove; four nieces and two nephews, and other relatives and a host of friends.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the late home to the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena with Rev. Theo. Haele officiating. Interment was made in the St. John Cemetery on Wolf Rd. south of Mokena.

Makes Special Flight To Washington

Geo. Thompson, well known hybrid corn grower of Frankfort, flew to Washington, D. C., the past week to have a conference with army officials relative to the selection of the Wilmington area for a munition factory site and on his return said he was satisfied from the data and records shown him by army officers that the proposed site is the best the army could select for the purpose the land is being acquired for.

Open Red-X Class In Food & Nutrition On October 10

A Red Cross class in food and nutrition, open to the public, will start Thursday afternoon, Oct. 10, at 1:30 o'clock, at the Tinley Park school. The course, which is under the auspices of the Tinley Park Woman's club, will continue for six weeks.

The course will be taught by Miss Annette Young, nutritionist of the Chicago chapter, American Red Cross. Subjects to be discussed and demonstrated include menu planning, special diets, food fads, infant and child nutrition, preserving food values and low cost meals.

Red Cross instruction in nutrition is part of the health education program of the organization. The course teaches the principles of food selection and their application to everyday living.

Plans also are being made in Tinley Park for a Red Cross course in home hygiene and care of the sick, to instruct women in care of babies care of the sick and aged in the home, methods of meeting common household emergencies, and the safeguarding of individual and community health.

MOKENA MAY TAX TRUCKS

The Mokena Village Board is seriously considering the adoption of an ordinance similar to the one recently adopted by Frankfort for licensing every out of town truck doing business in Mokena. The Board took the matter up at their meeting Tuesday night but decided to hold the matter over for 30 days.

It is reported that so far 20 out of town trucks doing business in Frankfort have signed up for the special license which brings in about $300 in added revenue.

Tinley Park Firm Is 25 Years Old

Just 25 years ago on Oct. 5, 1915 Fred Hick and August Mesenbrink opened a meat market in the building in which the present market is located. The new business started out under the firm name of Hick & Mesenbrink which it still carries today.

Throughout this quarter of a century of active business, this firm has been accorded a very liberal patronage by its host of customers. Many of the old time friends have passed on, but new ones have been made and added to the list of satisfied patrons of this well known firm.

Within the past year death took the senior member of the firm, August Mesenbrink, but his son Walter is taking his place in the firm and is now associated with his uncle, Fred Hick in the same business founded by his father and uncle.

On this their silver anniversary of being in business, Hick & Mesenbrink wish to thank their many friends for their loyal patronage throughout the many years they have had the privilege to serve Tinley Park and the surrounding community and for their faith in the products they handle and they sincerely hope that they will be privileged to continue to serve their customers for years to come.

They also wish to thank their new customers who have come to Tinley in recent years, for their patronage.

Mokena Couple Married In Iowa

On Sept. 28 at 4:00 o'clock p.m. in "The Little Brown Church", at Nashua, Iowa, Margaret Krusemark daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Krusemark, of Truman, Minnesota, became the bride of Wesley Cappel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cappel, of Mokena.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Hanscom sang, "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly", Rev. T. L. Hanscom officiated.

The bride wore a white satin dress of street length and a finger tip veil. She carried a shower bouquet of pink rose buds and the only jewelry she wore was a string of pearls a gift from the groom.

At six o'clock a three course dinner was served at the Russell-Lamson Hotel in Waterloo. Only members of the immediate families were present.

All best wishes are extended to this young couple for their future happiness.

Lucille Reish of Orland Park An Autumn Bride

At 3 o'clock on Saturday, Sept. 28 in the Orland Park Methodist church, Ellsworth Uthe and Miss Lucille Reish were united in marriage in a most colorful and impressive ceremony by Rev. N. S. Nye, pastor of the church. Every available seat was taken when the bridal party started the age old journey down the aisle to the flower filled chancel where the ceremony was performed. The bride was accompanied by her father, Earl Reish, Sr., and was attended by her cousin, Georgianna Telford and her sisters, Mae and Velma, as bridesmaids and by little Ethel Reish and tiny Sandra Uthe as flower girls. The groom was attended by his brothers Harley and Alvin and by Earl Reish, Jr., brother of the bride, Mrs. H. Adele Cooper played the wedding march and Mrs. Harriett Gee sang the individual music.

The bride was very beautiful in an exquisite white satin brocaded wedding gown with white net veil and a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Telford's gown was of rose taffeta and those of Mae Reish and Velma Lucas were of turquoise blue taffeta. The flower girls Ethel Reish and Sandra Uthe were dressed in rose and blue respectively. The groom and his attendants were in informal street dress.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors and later supper was served to approximately 100 guests.

In the evening, an informal reception and open house was held in the Woodman Hall at Goodings Grove where the many friends of the newly weds danced until an early hour.

The young couple have rented an apartment in Orland Park and will immediately start up in housekeeping and with them go the best wishes of everyone in Orland Park.

Home Bureau Association Meets

The Will County annual meeting of the Home Bureau Association met in the Methodist church in New Lenox last Thursday at an all day session, with 120 guests being present. Mrs. Harold Scheer, president, presided.

Group singing was led by Mrs. James Paterson. Unit chairmen gave their annual reports. Mrs. Marie Louise Chase of the University of Illinois spoke.

Miss Jeanette Eisenbrandt, of the Frankfort 4-H club gave the demonstration she gave at the Springfield Fair.

Election of officers resulted as follows: Pres., Miss Caroline Bentley, New Lenox, Vice-pres., Mrs. Bettinahausen of Green Garden, Sec. Mrs. G. Bovee, Elwood, Treas., Mrs. Wm. Lister, Lemont. Luncheon was served at noon by the church ladies.

Because of a funeral in the church in the afternoon, the afternoon session was held at the school auditorium starting at 1:30. Reports were given by the executive board and also by the various Home Advisors.

Miss Jean Patterson, of Wheatland sang, and little Tommie Murphy of Manhattan also sang and tap danced. The main address was given by Mrs. Chas. Sewell, administrator director of Women's Division of American Farm Bureau Federation.

New Lenox Votes On Fire District Next Tuesday

Next Tuesday, October 8 will be a very important day in New Lenox township, when the voters will be called on to vote for or against the creation of a new fire district in the township, so that a much needed fire department can be organized and equipped by way of a special fire district tax.

This tax will be so small as not to be noticed by property owners when the value of fire protection is figured in dollars and cents.

New Lenox not being incorporated, can only resort to a fire district for means of getting a fire department. New Lenox has no fire protection of any kind and cannot depend on Joliet any more for fire protection aid. In case of fire it is just a case of organizing a bucket brigade or let the fire burn. If the blaze has too much of a start a bucket brigade cannot render any efficient aid nor save the burning building.

The special election will be held in the regular polling places in New Lenox from 6 a.m., to 5 p.m.

Every voter in New Lenox township is invited to vote on this important question. If the proposition carries, insurance rates on New Lenox township properties will decrease. Be sure to vote.

Orland vs. Oak Lawn at Worth

The Orland Park Baseball team will battle Oak Lawn Sunday for the 1st place Championship at Worth Sunday at 2 o'clock. In the previous meetings of these clubs, Oak Lawn with Milak on the mound bested Orland with Bormet on the mound by scores of 1-0, 2-1.

Orland was able to enter the finals by defeating Chicago Heights, by the score of 3-1. Oak Lawn defeated Worth 7-6 when they made 4 runs in the ninth inning.

The winners of Sunday's game between Orland and Oak Lawn will meet Lockport for the Championship of the South west Suburban League the following Sunday.

HOME HYGIENE AND NUTRITION CLASSES FOR TINLEY PARK

The Red Cross will open a course of six lessons on Home Hygiene and Nutrition beginning Thursday, October 10th at 1:30 in the school building.

The Woman's Club is sponsoring this course and it comes to the women at no expense.

Tell your friends about it and come out to the first meeting. Meet Miss G. Young, the dietitian, who will be in charge.

SWEET VIOLETS!

While Mrs. Robt. Schlacks of Mokena was raking her lawn, Sunday, she found a clump of Violets blooming.

Perhaps the violets were observing with us, the turning back of the clock and they might have become confused and thought it was time to bloom again. The little faces of lavender were most welcome.

Cars Crash Near Orland

Saturday afternoon two automobiles, a Packard and a Chevrolet, side swiped each other on Southwest highway near Orland.

The Packard, driven by a woman was turned over, but luckily the driver escaped serious injury.

Both cars were badly damaged and taken to the Oelke garage in Orland Park.

Sunday afternoon, a Ford, driven by Mr. McCaskey of Palos Park ran into a guard rail along the Southwest highway at 119th St.

The left hand side of the automobile was sheered off and Mr. McCaskey was quite badly injured, and taken to the hospital.

The car was towed to the Oelke garage.

About the worst looking wreck in the garage was a car which was driven by a Chicago party who in falling asleep lost control of the car which crashed into a bridge abutment in Palos Park.

The motor was driven back into the front seat and the rear axle torn loose and moved out of place. The driver sustained a broken ankle and other injuries, but by the looks of the car one would wonder that the driver was alive.

Use Blank Mokena Bank Checks

Check forgers are now employing a new technique to secure money on bogus checks. The past week strangers who had gained possession of blank Mokena Bank checks appeared in Joliet. One party made a purchase in an auto supply house and ordered the purchase sent to Mokena by express, giving the name of J. W. Schrelling. He tendered a check for $14 and received $5 in cash, the purchase coming to $9.

When the package arrived in Mokena, Whitney Carter local Rock Island agent knew there was no one residing here by the name of Schrelling but there is a J. W. Schilling. When the latter was notified he said he had no knowledge of the package sent here and said he never made a purchase of the goods.

The motor supply company was notified and will receive their merchandise back, but they are out the $5 in cash.

Another check passed in a similar deal showed up later in the amount of $11.

Otto Bartels, cashier of the Mokena State Bank notified the Will County Credit Bureau and a look out is being kept on strangers trying to pass checks on the Mokena State Bank.

Henry Skinner of New Lenox Dies Suddenly

Henry T. Skinner, aged 59 years of New Lenox, died suddenly this Thursday morning in the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet. He was taken ill Monday and went to the hospital shortly afterward.

Mr. Skinner came to New Lenox from Chicago ten years ago and has resided here since.

Surviving are his wife, Lena; 2 daughters, Mrs. Catherine Mundt, Niagara, Wis., Miss Virginia Skinner of Hoboken, N. J., one sister, Miss Skinner of Hamburg, N. J., two brothers, Lyle, Hoboken, N. J., and Ralph of Washington, D. C.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed up to time of going to press last night.

Girl Hitch-Hikers Leap From Truck

About eleven o'clock Tuesday night two girls, about 19 and 20 years old, walked into the tavern of Martin Miller at 183rd and Oak Park south of Tinley Park and told a story of having escaped from a truck on which they were hitch-hiking when two men on the truck made improper advances. They hopped off the moving truck and came to the tavern to rest up for a few minutes.

The girls said they were from Atlanta, Ga., and that they had hitch hiked north in search of employment, dressed in slacks and carried a suit case and said they had picked up a ride with two truck drivers in Chicago Heights and that when they came to the vicinity of 183rd street the men made improper advances and the girls jumped off the truck.

They said the southern young men were more chivalrous than the northern boys.

After remaining in the tavern for about a half hour they left, saying they were going to Lyons, Ill. The night was dark and foggy and they quickly disappeared in the fog after leaving the tavern. Nothing further was heard or seen of them.

America's New Atlantic Bases Hem Caribbean

Safeguard All Approaches To United States and Panama Canal Zone.

By NORTON PHILLIPS
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
WASHINGTON.—The air and naval bases in the Atlantic ocean and Caribbean sea acquired recently by the United States from Great Britain through negotiations led by the Marquess of Lothian, British envoy in Washington, sweep like an inverted questionmark from Newfoundland on the north, southwestward through Bermuda and the Bahamas, south to Jamaica, eastward to Trinidad and British Guiana, and northward again to St. Lucia and Antigua, according to a special bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"From Newfoundland, the northernmost base, to British Guiana, on the mainland of South America, southernmost of the bases, is an airline distance of approximately 2,700 miles," the bulletin says.

Newfoundland is one of the most important of the base locations, guarding the northern approaches by air and water to Canada and the United States. It extends for approximately 400 miles north and south across the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the widened mouth of the St. Lawrence river. Newfoundland's famous Botwood airfield used at one time by the Pan American transatlantic clippers, and recently by American-built war planes flown to England, lies about 2,000 miles west and slightly south from the coast of Ireland. It is 950 miles southwest of the southern tip of Greenland.

Portugal's Azores islands are 1,400 miles to the southeast, and Bermuda is 1,110 miles to the southwest. Newfoundland is of greatest importance as an air base in mid-summer when a short period of good weather makes flying relatively easy across the North Atlantic.

Bermuda Near U. S.
The defense base at Bermuda, next to the south from Newfoundland, is within 1,000 miles or less of every important port on the Atlantic coast of North America, both in the United States and Canada. The English channel ports of Britain lie more than 3,000 miles to the north-east. The United States is only one-fifth as distant, since Cape Hatteras, N. C., is 640 miles west and slightly north.

Bermuda's subtropical cluster of more than 150 islands, enclosed within a living barricade of coral reef about ten miles in diameter, already serves as Britain's base for the British navy's "America and West Indies" fleet. Within the rim of coral reef the Bermuda islands are so grouped as nearly to encircle the land-locked waters of the Great sound, mentioned as the probable American base. Small islands around the Great sound's sheltered harbor are the actual bases for the British navy and the Pan American clipper planes.

Of the 28,000 residents on Bermuda's 19½ square miles, the white inhabitants are outnumbered in a

Tax Commission Proposes Budget For Rearmament

CHICAGO.—A billion-dollar-a-year rearmament program for the United States which would not cost taxpayers a red cent now or in the future is the prospect held out by the National Consumers Tax commission.

In a message to the quarter-million members in 45 states, Mrs. Melville Muckelstone, NCTC president, declared that "if our local governments would eliminate inefficiency and waste from the administration of their affairs, American taxpayers would be saved a sum so large that it would more than offset the $994,400,000 to be raised annually through the national defense act which went into effect July 1."

This seemingly too-good-to-be-true solution to a large part of the defense problem is an actual possibility, Mrs. Muckelstone said, for the simple reason that the local taxpayer is the same one who foots the national tax bill and therefore costs of defense measures.

"Experts agree that making our city, town, county, and other local governmental units thoroughly efficient and honest would cut from 10 to 20 per cent from our total local tax bill," the NCTC leader declared, "without curtailing essential governmental services."

United States' newly acquired naval and air bases in the Atlantic ocean extend from Newfoundland to the mainland of South America, an airline distance of approximately 2,700 miles.

population 55 per cent colored. A strategic factor is the problem of supplies; food, water, and other necessities are imported chiefly from the United States.

3,000 Islands in Bahamas.

The Bahama islands group, roughly 700 miles southwest of Bermuda, over which the duke of Windsor now presides, consists in all of more than 3,000 islands, islets, cays and rocks strewn over some 630 miles of ocean between Florida and Hispaniola (the island of Haiti and the Dominican Republic). The aggregate area is less than 4,500 square miles. All of the islands are low and of coral formation. The island nearest Florida is Bimini, about 60 miles east of Miami. The most historic is San Salvador (Watling island) on the eastern fringe, where Columbus landed in 1492.

Jamaica, 500 miles south of the Bahamas, and on the southern side of Cuba, is one of the vital base locations because of its nearness to the Panama canal which lies about 550 miles to the south. It is the only one of the bases squarely within the Caribbean sea; the others nearby lie on the outer fringe of that body of water. It is Britain's watchdog island beside the busy Windward Passage, shipping channel between the North Atlantic and the Panama canal.

Kingston is capital and chief port. With only 4,000 square miles, Jamaica supports 1,173,000 inhabitants, the second largest number of British subjects in the Western hemisphere—second only to Canada. Less than one-fifth of them are white.

The sheltered harbor of Kingston is seven miles long and more than a mile in width. It is a hub for Caribbean airlines.

Trinidad, close to the shore of Venezuela, serves as an "abutment" for the arch of the Windward and Leeward islands which enclose the Caribbean on the east. The island is 1,862 square miles in extent and has a population of 412,000. On the basis of production it is one of the most valuable of England's West Indian colonies.

The island has an enormous deposit of natural asphalt, Pitch lake, which covers 114 square miles and from which more than 100,000 tons has been exported in one year. The island also produces as much as 10,000,000 barrels of petroleum in one year, raising this comparatively small island at one time to eleventh in world production.

St. Lucia, one of the Windward islands only 200 miles north of the island of Trinidad, has an excellent harbor. Its area of 238 square miles supports a population of about 65,000, mostly Negroes. This island is about 1,150 miles east of the Panama canal, and faces Dakar, the westernmost point of Africa, about 2,600 miles to the east.

Once Was French.

The island changed hands between England and France several times, so that the natives speak with a strong French accent. It has been English territory since 1814.

The southernmost of the defense bases will be located in British Guiana, Britain's only territory on the mainland of South America. It will give the United States a base some 1,450 miles east of the Panama canal and about equidistant from the canal and the hub port of the South Atlantic, Natal on the projecting "shoulder" of Brazil.

The chief port and capital, Georgetown, dominates the 270 miles of coastline. This narrow British strip of South America extends for nearly 500 miles up into the continent's northern highlands. Its area is 89,480 square miles. The colony has less than a third of a million inhabitants, nearly a half of them East Indians.

Antigua, in the northern half of the sweeping arc of islands that guards the eastern doorway to the Caribbean sea, is about 200 miles north of St. Lucia and 260 miles east of Puerto Rico. An irregularly shaped patch of land, it is the smallest of the West Indies islands offered to the United States for bases. It is only about 12 miles in length from east to west, with a total area of 108 square miles. It has a population of little over 35,000.

Although at one time Antigua's English Harbour was headquarters for England's Leeward Islands naval station when the island was comparatively rich and active, it is today merely a sleepy tropical outpost, off the regular tourist "beat."

Antigua is valuable as a strategically set watchdog on the route to the Panama canal. It is the center and seat of government of Britain's Leeward islands. It is situated less than 40 miles north of Guadeloupe, one of France's colonial possessions whose status following the German conquest of the motherland is still undetermined.

Government Seeks Oil For Delicate Machines

TACOMA, WASH.—Although the increasing number of aeronautical instruments, watches, and other delicate mechanisms is causing a shortage in the supply of fishjaw oil, a government agency, in making a survey of the sources of such lubricants, has found one in the beluga, or white whale, found in large numbers near Cook inlet, 15 miles from Anchorage, Alaska, according to an official report.

Criticism of Willkie for not controlling party members in Congress brings up Roosevelt parallel . . . Many prominent figures in U. S. Senate going into discard.
(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

One really has to go back to 1916 to find a presidential campaign as curious in its lineup as this one. This may not be so strange, because it was the war situation which made that battle so peculiar.

For instance, there have been two precisely opposite criticisms of Wendell Willkie with regard to the amendment which would have postponed conscription—the one introduced by Representative Ham Fish and passed by the house of representatives.

One set of critics scream that Willkie should NOT have opposed the Fish amendment. They point out that he did not HAVE to say ANYTHING, and here he was taking issue with the man who will be chairman of the house foreign affairs committee if the Republicans gain control of the house this election.

METHOD NOT CLEAR

It is not made clear just HOW Willkie would go about doing this. No national convention of any party was ever able to bind the members of its party elected to the house and senate AFTER the convention laid down its dictum.

But while this division in the Republican party has been attracting a great deal of criticism and comment, with Willkie being attacked by both sides, how about the Democratic party?

It just happens that the house of representatives PASSED this much discussed Fish amendment. There is no thought here of blaming President Roosevelt for that, but it could not have passed if a large number of Democratic members of the house had not voted for it. The Democratic majority in the present house is tremendous.

PARTY CONTROL WEAKENS

Now, Mr. Roosevelt, as President and as the candidate of his party for re-election, obviously should have more control of the Democrats in the house than Mr. Willkie has of the Republicans.

This is not an attempt to make a case politically for either side. Both parties are split on every phase of the war issue. Every individual senator and representative, and every candidate for election as such, is going to speak and vote just the way he thinks will do HIM, individually, the most good at the polls in November. If that individual candidate thinks his vote will also help the candidate of his party for President, he is usually glad of it, but that is purely incidental.

This tendency, which might be discussed learnedly as the decay of party responsibility, has been growing rapidly. It is the child of the direct primary. It is the child of the overthrow of the state bosses. But nobody is going to be able to do anything about it this year anyway.

VETERAN SENATORS RETIRING

Almost never before, at this stage of a campaign, have so many prominent figures in the United States senate gone into the discard. With several primaries to come, there are already eight senators who will not be taking the oath again next January.

On top of this, the election prospects of certain other sitting senators are none too bright. Betting odds, for example, favor the defeat of Sherman Minton of Indiana. Chavez of New Mexico, even if he survives the primary, may easily go down in the election, for the Republicans are pretty cocky in New Mexico.

Sen. Peter Goelet Gerry of Rhode Island, who came to the senate in 1916, was later defeated, and then made a comeback, is in grave danger from the prospects of a Republican sweep in his state. Sen. Joseph F. Guffey, first Democratic senator from Pennsylvania in more than a generation, is regarded by political observers as almost certain to lose. In fact, while it is the general opinion that Guffey will run behind his ticket.

Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, he of the anti-monopoly investigation, is also in danger in Wyoming.

All these probabilities are NOT calculated on the basis of a Republican sweep. They are calculated on the basis of a fairly close election. If there should be a Roosevelt victory anything approaching that of 1936, it would undoubtedly save O'Mahoney, Gerry, and Chavez, assuming he wins the primary. It might even save Guffey, though that would take a bit of doing.

On the other hand, if there should be a Republican sweep, it might carry down several other Democratic senators who are expected by most observers to survive.

Rest in Bed Important in Influenza Cure

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

DURING the 1918 and 1919 'flu epidemic I happened to be senior medical officer of a large military hospital and was in a position to watch the effect of different types of treatment—the use of fever-reducing drugs, the use of various heart stimulants, the effect of getting patients to bed the first day of the attack (and also three or four days after the attack first occurred), the effect of removing blood from patients who had recovered and injecting it into others, particularly those with a high temperature or where there was a complication of bronchopneumonia or pneumonia.

Our records showed that our death rate was much lower than the average for the general population and this was believed to be due to the fact that every soldier was checked over daily and those with influenza were placed in hospital a day or two sooner. It was this getting the patient into hospital "a day or two sooner" that brought about early recovery and prevented the dangerous complications—broncho-pneumonia and pneumonia. These two ailments, not influenza, were responsible for most deaths.

The 'Rest Theory' Proved.

That early rest in bed is more important in preventing complications than the form of treatment is shown by a report by Dr. Alfred M. Glazer, Cincinnati, in the Ohio State Medical Journal. There were four groups of patients.

Group 1 was given aspirin compound, phenobarbital, bed rest, forced fluids and light diet.

Group 2 was given the same treatment as group 1 plus 15 grains of soda bicarbonate—baking soda—every four hours.

Group 3 was given same treatment as group 1, but quinine was used instead of aspirin.

Group 4—no medicine of any kind, except rest in bed, was given, but a gelatin capsule of glucose (sugar) every four hours.

The results of these methods showed that the temperature, the stay in hospital, and the complications were not any higher, longer, or more numerous in the cases where rest in bed was the only method of treatment.

Prevention of Dementia Precox

THERE is a mental ailment that should receive the most earnest consideration of parents, teachers and physicians, which, if treated in its early stage, may result in a cure in the majority of cases. Undiscovered or neglected, this mental ailment sends more patients to mental hospitals than any other single ailment. I am referring to dementia precox, the ailment where the individual lives really two lives, one life amid those about him and the other life "in a world of his own."

'No Favorites' at Home.

What must parents, teachers and physicians do to prevent the development of dementia precox in children and young adults?

The clinic of Drs. Edward A. Strecker and Francis J. Braceland, Institute of the Pennsylvania Hospital, in the Philadelphia number of Clinics of North America, says:

Prevention must be intensively cultivated during childhood, and every child who presents dementia precox symptoms—"good," "queer," "shy," "reserved," "difficult," "unsociable," "seclusive," etc.—should be suspected.

In the home "parents must play no favorites," either in rewards or punishments. The extra ability or sociability of brothers or sisters should not be pointed out.

Personally I believe the biggest factor in preventing dementia precox is group games, where the youngster has to "give and take." There is no "royal" road for him to tread when he is playing or mixing with others.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—What causes ringworm on the head or face?
A.—It is due to a vegetable parasite. The treatment is to use preparations to kill this parasite.
Q.—Can arthritis be caused by food?
A.—Lack of vitamin B1 in food is now considered a cause or partial cause of arthritis. Foods rich in vitamin B-1 are liver, bacon, leafy vegetables, buttermilk, yeast tablets and peanuts.

School Girls Will Like This Number

SCHOOL girls will love to wear this pretty frock—and it's so very becoming to all of them! Flared at the skirt, wide at the shoulders, design No. 8763 fills them out, at the age when they shoot up like beanpoles. And the high-cut princess skirt scoops in gratifyingly at the waistline.

This pretty frock makes up charmingly in a combination of plaid and plain fabrics, as pictured, but it's very smart in one color, too. The two versions look so different that you'll really get two fashions out of this one pattern. Gingham, linen, percale and chambray are pretty for this. Make it up, later on, in wool crepe or challis.

Pattern No. 8763 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires ¾ yard of 35-inch material for short sleeved waist portion, 1¼ yards for skirt. Send order to:

The day after Christmas "Manhattan Idyl" was hung in the Knoder Galleries, and Mrs. Austin went early in the afternoon to see it. Like Wild, it fascinated her, and a crowd of people were milling around before it. She left shortly, afraid that Wild might come along, for he and Lynn were due there at 5 o'clock for tea. She had made sure of that face, and because she was so sure of what was going to happen, she went directly from the galleries to Mr. Harlen's office.

"Have you heard anything yet?" "I don't expect word for a while. Just be patient. Just what do you expect to find?"

"I don't know. But there must be something!" Mrs. Austin waited, her hands clenched in her lap. "I can wait. It does not matter!"

Wild and Lynn went to the tea for Rene, and crowds flocked to see the picture. Later they dined quietly and Wild got Lynn home early for she was very tired.

When she hung up her coat at last she stopped suddenly where she stood. There on the floor was a half-used paper packet of matches. Puzzled, she picked them up. They were from the Hotel Astor. She threw them on the table, thinking Wild must have dropped them, and tried to settle herself at the table to write a letter to her sister. When she opened her desk she had an off feeling that things seemed awry.

"I'm nervous tonight," she got a few words down on the sheet of paper, but her ring winked up at her maliciously, and she threw down the pen. A sudden panic seized her. She rummaged into a drawer, hunting for the damning piece of paper. It was there, folded neatly, under some letters from Bangor.

Lynn tried to think straight. "If I tell him honestly and squarely, just how things are, he'll believe me. But his mother? What will she do? She'll have to know."

While Lynn lay there in the shabby apartment trying to straighten out the tangle into which she had got her life, Wild was in his mother's sitting-room at Austin Manor.

He was surprised at her agitation.

"Wild, you know I love you!"

The danger signal! It had always been so, Mrs. Austin could feel him stiffen, become hostile. Tears came to her eyes, and she prayed for the right words, for help.

"Wild, that girl was married to Boucher last Spring. On February 26, in Lu Lu, S. C."

Mrs. Austin's voice sounded tired and old.

"No, it isn't true. I don't even have to ask Lynn," Wild was angry. "I know Rene, and I know Lynn. Rene knows I'm going to marry her."

"Raymond!" She never called him that, only in a crisis. "Raymond. Look at me. One of Mr. Harlen's men found the marriage license in her apartment today!"

Wild stared down at his mother's bent head. "Mother! You had her rooms searched?" He was unbelieving that she would stoop so low.

Mrs. Austin raised her head: "I did!" She looked her son straight in the eyes. "I did, Wild. To you that seems dishonorable. I'd do much more than that for your safety!"

The hot color came into the man's cheeks.

"It was there, Wild. I knew there was something wrong. I knew when I saw the portrait. I knew!"

Wild stood there for a long time, looking unseeing at his mother.

"I do not believe it," his voice sounded unnatural and Mrs. Austin's heart beat so hard it hurt. He said he did not believe, but at least she had made him listen! Her boy's eyes were hostile. To her horror she saw almost hatred in them.

"Wild!" she pleaded.

He looked at his wrist watch. It was after midnight. He turned abruptly and walked to the door without speaking to her.

"Wild!" she called after him, desperate. She could not let him go like this. She ran out into the hall and saw the door of his room was open. As she came to it, panting for breath, he met her in the doorway, his hat and coat on.

"Where are you going?"

"To Lynn. I am going to marry her, tonight!"

She tried to take his arm, but he shook off her touch.

"I'm going to her. If you've lied, I'll never forgive you!" Then he ran down the wide staircase.

Shortly Wild was driving like a madman over the slippery roads into Manhattan.

The faster he drove the more furious Wild became at his mother.

It was very quiet in the sleeping city when he pulled up in front of her apartment. He parked his car and got out stiffly. When he pushed the buzzer of her apartment, it seemed a long time before the door clicked open. In the elevator he leaned against the wall and he felt dizzy and sick.

"God!" Now that he was here, a terror took possession of him. If it were true? But it was not. At Lynn's door he knocked gently. She opened it a crack.

"It's me, Wild, dear. I must talk to you." Then in a moment, he faced her in the glare of light,

CHAPTER XXV

Lynn in her bathrobe stood facing Wild, dazed with the bright light, the sudden, sharp ring of her door bell.

"Lynn." His voice was harsh. "Get dressed immediately. We're getting married tonight. Now."

"Married?" Lynn's voice sounded strange to him.

"Now, tonight, this morning! Get dressed, Lynn."

He did not come near her, and she stared at him, thinking of that other night, wondering if he were drunk. He read her thoughts:

"I'm not drunk. Hurry. It will take us at least three hours to get into Maryland."

Lynn did not move. With one hand she leaned heavily on the table as though to steady herself. As she looked, his eyes told her the whole story. He knew! She did not stop to ask how. Her terrified eyes did not move from his face.

"I said, get dressed, Lynn. We're getting married in three hours."

He came toward her as though to take her in his arms.

"No."

The monosyllable stopped him short. He swayed slightly as he stood there. His eyes were desperate. Lynn's teeth were chattering in the cold of the room.

He looked at her until it seemed to her she could bear his eyes no longer. He brushed his hand over his face.

"It is true, isn't it." Even then, there was an unbelieving note in his voice. Even in her own desperation she felt a terrible pity for him. He turned to the door. His voice finally broke that stillness: "You are a dirty little cheat!" Then he opened the door.

He did not look at her again. In a moment she was kneeling there, alone before the closed door, and she could hear the elevator door clank open.

"Wild!" She huddled there on the cold floor, and she wished that she could die. She kept whispering his name, but she could not cry. And always was that voice of her conscience: "If you had told him yourself! If you had had the courage!"

"I'm a dirty little cheat." She said the words aloud, slowly. Her own voice startled her, and for the first time she wept a little. But Lynn had not tears for this crisis.

Worst of all, she had only a bitter regret to comfort her. She could not blame Wild. It was her own fault. But that only made the well of suffering into which she had sunk the more difficult to bear.

"If only . . ." She framed the words with her stiff lips. She sat there at the window taut with waiting. He must come back! As Lynn sat quiet, bent over with suffering there by the window, Wild drove his car up the roadway to his home. He must see his mother.

As he came upstairs he could see a streak of light under her door. He tapped gently. Mrs. Austin, worn and tired, opened the door to her son.

"My boy!"

"Mother!" As though he were a little boy, she gathered him into her arms. She crooned to him, patted his hair. His shoulders shook.

"I'm sorry, Mother."

"I know. I was cruel. But it had to be done, Wild. It had to be done."

"I know." She was shocked at his drawn face. She tried to comfort him, but he shook his head.

"You've been walking, you're all wet and cold." He did not seem to hear what she said.

"I'm a fool, mother." He tried to smile at her. "You warned me." His face felt stiff, and he was inexpressibly weary. Suddenly, he, too, seemed to see the days stretching ahead.

"What am I going to do?" His voice was filled with horror.

"We all carry on."

"I've got to get away. I can't stay here. I'd go mad." He took off his overcoat and turned to Mrs. Austin.

"It's odd, but I feel as though I'd been sick for weeks." He turned away from her. He was anxious, now that he had made his peace, to be alone.

"Let me come with you."

"No, I've got to face this out, alone, mother." And he left her to cry herself to sleep in the gray of the morning.

To Lynn it seemed that the end of the world had come. She watched with surprise, the people going to work in the street below. When it was 8 o'clock, she got up hurriedly and dressed! She'd go beg Rene to help her.

She ran most of the two blocks to Rene's studio and came up the stairs panting. She fell into his arms sobbing wildly. She clung to him in desperation, her only friend.

"Rene, you've got to get him back! Somehow, you've got to get him back!"

He tried to get a coherent story out of her, but her sobs choked her voice, and he had to guess most of what had happened.

"He's gone!" she kept repeating. Rene tried to quiet her, but now that the flood gates were opened under his sympathy, she was hysterical.

It was cold in the studio and he wrapped a blanket about her and put her on the couch. He knelt before her and tried to quiet her, but it was a long time before she could listen to him.

"My dear, my dear!" Rene's voice broke as he looked into her eyes. "My poor baby!" He took her in his arms then.

"He'll come back, dear. He'll come back if I have to bring him at the point of a gun!"

To neither of them did it seem ironical that Rene, the husband, should talk so.

He made coffee and forced her to drink a scalding cup. Then he went off to dress and came back to make his plans.

"I'll see him just as soon as I can. Can I telephone him at home?"

"I don't know!" Lynn could only moan.

He got Austin Manor on the wire after a little while, but the butler refused to call Mr. Wild until he knew who was telephoning. Rene gave his name and waited. The butler came back:

"Mr. Wild is not here."

Then Rene tried the office. The same response. Rene hated to go back to the bleak studio, but he hurried there just the same. Lynn's eyes were beseeching when he came in the door, but she asked no questions. She knew the answer.

"I'll try later in the day."

By 10 o'clock Lynn could stand it no longer and Rene went again to try his luck.

The butler was on the line again. Rene tried to change his voice.

"Mr. Wild is sailing this morning for Europe."

That was enough for Rene. He grabbed a newspaper and hunted through the day's sailings. He found it. The Ile de France was sailing at 11. He came back to Lynn.

"Get yourself fixed up. We're going over to Fifty-seventh Street. He's sailing."

There was not much time. Sailing was at 11. They could not get aboard, but they stood together near the gangplank watching.

Suddenly Lynn saw Wild. He was hurrying toward the gangplank. She tried to call his name, but the crowds cut her off from him and he could not hear. Mrs. Austin was with Wild and so was Chuck. His good-bys to them were short, and shortly after he had boarded the ship, the crew began to pull in the gangplank.

Lynn's eyes were blurred with tears as the big boat began to move. For a long time they stood there. She leaned heavily against Rene.

"Come." He shook her gently. "We must go home."

CHAPTER XXVI

Lynn did not come to Rene's studio to pose the next morning. When she had not come at 11 o'clock, Rene put on his mackinaw and walked over to her apartment. He could not get an answer to his ring for some time, but finally Lynn unlocked the door. She stood there weaving uncertainly.

"I'm pretty sick," she managed.

Rene got her back into bed and called a doctor.

"Bad sore throat. Bed for a few days," was the verdict. Rene telephoned Mme. Reanoud and consulted with the doctor. They tried to get her into a hospital but they were all crowded. The doctor found a practical nurse and Rene felt relieved. At least there would be somebody to look after the girl. Rene was a poor nurse. He would be of no use in a sick room.

Rene came every day, brought her flowers, read to her. The day Lynn was first able to sit up Wild landed at Havre. Lynn hoped against hope that he might cable. But it was clinging to a straw.

It was that night Mme. Reanoud came to see her little model. She found Lynn sitting up wrapped in a blanket.

"What is all this about?" Madam demanded when she saw Lynn's face.

"I've been sick."

"Nonsense. I mean, what is really the matter with you?" When Lynn would not answer, Mme. Reanoud took a hand.

"Now look here, child. You need some plain talking to." She settled herself in the uncomfortable chair and began: "Of course, I know what's the matter. The young man's gone off. It was bound to get into the papers. You can't run around and be engaged to a millionaire and have him duck on a boat for Europe right in the midst of it without having this town by the ears."

"I suppose not." Tears came into Lynn's eyes for a moment. "There is nothing to say. Just that he is gone."

"What about you?"

"What about me?" Lynn's voice was tragic as she echoed the words. "I've a little money saved. I might go up home for a while." She stared out of the window, lost in thought.

"How can I go on?" Lynn suddenly turned appealingly to Madam and in a moment she was in the older woman's arms.

"Poor kid!" Madam's eyes were wet. Lynn seemed so utterly young and defenseless. She could have throttled Wild. But Madam had seen sure this would happen,

Greatest Swindler Dupes Publishers With Faked Books

Often Exposed, He Managed, Under Aliases, to Sell Fictitious Stories.

LONDON.—Regarded by English police, book publishers, literary agents, and journalists as probably the greatest literary hoaxer and swindler of the century, Netley Lucas, 37 years old, alias Evelyn Graham, alias Robert Tracy, man about town, thief from childhood, forger, confidence man, jewel robber, pyromaniac, many times a convict, member of a wealthy family, is dead. And the manner of his death was even more fantastic than any of the thousands of incidents in the lives of other people which were concocted by his own vivid and fertile imagination.

For two months Lucas had been living under one of his pen names as Robert Tracy in a beautifully furnished house which he had rented at Fetcham, near Leatherhead, Surrey.

Most of his time was spent in drinking, and a few days ago he was found dead in the partly burnt out lounge of the house. His body was cremated at Woking.

Considered a Good Riddance.

Few people in Fleet street, center of the newspaper industry, will mourn the passing of this prince of tricksters, for despite his personal charm, his plausible tongue and his undoubted cleverness, Lucas was a crook and a rogue at heart. He spared no one's honor or reputation to achieve his own ends.

By the sale of fake biographies of royal personages and social celebrities he defrauded publishers of many thousands of pounds. Convicted on several occasions, he was exposed as a fraud and swindler, but still managed, under other names, to sell his fictitious life stories.

He first came under the notice of the police in 1917, when he was only 14 years of age. He was then bound over at Westminster police court for attempting to obtain money by false pretenses. Sent to an industrial school at West Drayton, Middlesex, he ran away, but was later arrested in the west end for begging.

Beginning a real career of crime, he kept out of the hands of the police until 1920, when, at London Sessions, he was sent to Borstal for stealing checks and obtaining money by fraud.

It was then he stated that he had associated with every form of crook and confidence trickster imaginable.

He staged a series of daring jewel robberies throughout the country, and squandered the money he obtained.

Sold Faked Biographies.

In conjunction with Sir George Ashton, an innocent victim of his plausible tongue, Lucas wrote the duke of Connaught's biography, with, it was stated, the duke's permission. He followed this with "Lord Darling and His Famous Trials," and a biography of the queen of Spain.

Later came biographies of King George, King Albert of Belgium, the prince of Wales, Princess Mary, and a number of distinguished public and sporting figures and famous actors and actresses.

With every publication Lucas grew bolder and bolder.

In 1931 he was arrested by the police in connection with a fraudulent attempt to sell a fake biography of the late Queen Alexandra. And at the Old Bailey he was sentenced to 18 months' hard labor.

After his release from prison Lucas returned to Fleet street, and started a number of literary agencies and journalistic enterprises. By this time he was so well known that his contributions were barred by most reputable newspapers and publishers.

Denver Man, Blind for 29

Years, Regains His Sight

DENVER.—After 29 years of darkness, during which time his son was born, grew to manhood, married, and had a child of his own, Alex Brennan of Denver can see again.

In a darkened room a few days ago, doctors removed bandages from the 64-year-old man's eyes. He leaned forward, gasped, and stared at his son who was born just a few months after he had lost his sight in 1911.

One of his first reactions was astonishment when he saw his wife for the first time in all those years.

"Why—your skirts—they are almost up to your knees. And—paint!"

Foreign Exchange Ratio

Reduces Jail Sentence

MIDVALE, UTAH.—A difference in the value of the American dollar and the Japanese yen brought a shorter jail term for a 38-year-old Midvale resident.

Ernest Dickerson was charged with theft of a Buddhist ceremonial robe from a Buddhist church here and faced a felony term in state prison because of the reported value of the robe.

Prosecuting Attorney H. D. Lowry changed the complaint to a misdemeanor charge when he learned the robe is valued at 150 yen and not $150—as his complaint had read.

Dickerson pleaded guilty to the lesser charge.

Inspection of Furnace

Turns Merchant Pale

WATERBURY, CONN.—A restaurant proprietor turned pale when he entered the basement and found a gas company inspector examining the heating system.

Weakly he asked, "Did you light the fire?"

"Not before I found your $720 hidden in the flue and took it upstairs to your cashier."

Boy's Refusal to Bathe Brings Cops

Officer Runs Boy Off Fire Escape to a Whipping.

NEW YORK.—David Hershkowitz, 12 years old, refused to take a bath when his mother told him he needed one, and caused a commotion that drew crowds into the street and brought Patrolman Samuel Cohn, a rookie in his first day at the Sheriff street station, on his first emergency call.

David came home dirty from playing in the parkway along the East River drive. His mother told him to take a bath, and pulled the tub into the middle of the kitchen floor to fill it with water for him. David objected, and his mother remonstrated. To escape her persuasion, David climbed to the fire escape outside the apartment, which is on the third floor front.

David and his mother continued the argument through the kitchen window in voices which attracted the neighbors' attention. Mrs. Hershkowitz knew that David, who is big for his age and weighs more than a hundred pounds, was more than a match for her, and made no attempt to bring him in by force. A crowd gathered in the street. David talked of jumping and someone called the police.

As Patrolman Cohn arrived, two police radio cars drew up at the curb, and Patrolman Edward Stack got out of one of them and went up to the Hershkowitz kitchen, while Patrolman Cohn remained below. David yielded to the sight of the police and came in. His father, who had meanwhile returned, administered a thrashing, after which David took his bath.

'Dead' Rattlesnake Bites

Keeper, Then Dies Again

FORT WORTH, TEXAS.—Harry Jackson, keeper of the reptiles, finally was bitten by a snake. And it took a "dead" snake to do it.

The reptile "died" in the snake pit at the zoo and Jackson was about to skin it. Suddenly it came to life, bit the keeper and "died" again. Jackson slashed his finger where the snake had struck and went to a hospital for further treatment.

"Never trust a rattlesnake, dead or alive," he said.

This particular snake was named Hitler because it had been dictator ever since it was brought from San Antonio.

Hitler had such a commanding disposition that a woman watching him for an hour one day made a remark to Jackson as she turned to leave the snake show.

"Betcha $5," she said, "that rattlesnake bites you before the week goes by."

Jackson wished he had called the bet when Hitler died, but later revoked his wish when Hitler proved deadly even in death.

Golfer Slices Tee Shot;

It's a Pocket in One

EL PASO.—A pocket-in-one! That's what Chuck Scarborough made while touring an El Paso golf course.

Scarborough teed off on the eighth hole. The little white pellet sliced into a tree, and bounced back in the middle of three of his fellow players. The ball hit Robert Shirley's chest and glanced off an upthrown finger.

After the incident the foursome began searching for the ball. Shirley, reaching for a cigarette in his shirt pocket, was amazed to find the ball there.

Scarborough, today, claims credit for the most mysterious shot in the history of southwestern golfdom.

Hospitable Auto Owner

Acquires a Strange Boy

CLAY CENTER, KAN.—It was so bitter cold that Tom Bigler didn't think much about it when a stranger climbed in beside him as he sat warming himself in front of his car's heater while parked on a Clay Center street. Then a small boy crawled in and snuggled between the two men. The stranger left and Bigler called to him that he had forgotten his son. "Taint my boy," said the stranger, "I thought he was yours."

Police Ingenuity Leads

To Arrest of Fuel Thief

EAST LONGMEADOW, MASS.—Investigating thefts of gasoline from a local business man, Police Chief Marshal Lavolette found the missing fuel stored in cans in nearby woods.

After removing the gasoline, Lavolette filled the cans with water. A day later he arrested a motorist for larceny when the man's auto, the fuel tank partly filled with water, stalled in the business district.

There just ain't no money to be found in farming. Ya gotta work for it. But That don't mean, the harder you work the more money you get, unless your farm tools are in first class shape, and that don't mean that you gotta have shiny new equipment either.

Just talk it over with Cholly. Let him replace haywire with Bolts, Rivets, and welding, and Cholly says he can weld on a new patch and do as good looking a job as your tailor did on your Sunday pants, after the bull chased you thru the fence the day you were on a picnic.

In plain words, Cholly Says he can save you a lot of foldin money. The Sievert Welding Works, 1 Mi., north of Maple Rd. Follow the new tower line. Phone New Lenox 3136.

Mrs. John Malo and Mrs. Plumhoff, both of Fairmont, Minn., visited with their old friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. Oulman the past week. They had not seen each other for many years.

The Bremen Township Board held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday night.

The regular monthly meeting of the Village Board will be held next Tuesday night.

Rev. L. E. Weinreich is attending the Methodist conference at Freeport, Illinois this week.

Miss Mary Barr and Percy Keister were united in marriage at the Harvey Methodist church last Saturday.

Dr. and Mrs. George Anderson have been guests in the J. Oulman home.

The Peter Wannemacher farm is reported to have been sold to Geo. Wollenberg for an undisclosed consideration.

Women's Society of Christian Service
The Women's Society of Christian Service held their first regular meeting in the Hirsch Home October 2nd at two o'clock.

The President, Mrs. Ada Shellhase spoke on the meaning and help of Prayer in our lives.

Mrs. Helen Hardinger introduced Wilbur and Pete. The latter turned out to be a pig bank in which money will be collected for the lepers.

After the regular business, Mrs. L. E. Weinreich was presented and very ably installed the following officers:

President, Mrs. Ada Shellhase; vice-president, Mrs. Trudie Swisher; recording sec., Mrs. Thelma Crist; cor. sec., Mrs. Mamie Hollstein; treasurer, Mrs. Mamie Brandau; sec. of Missionary Education and Service Mrs. Helen Hardinger; sec. of Christian School Relations and Local Church Activities, Mrs. Frances Kedrow; sec. of Literature and Publications, Mrs. Minnie Felton.

A beautiful installation service of song and prayer was used and we all feel inspired to carry on our work in this new organization.

—Thelma Crist, Secretary.

Agriculture Urged To Back Willkie

Agriculture, traditionally independent and always in the forefront of the fight to preserve the American democratic way of life, today was urged to join in the fight to uphold these traditions by a victory for Wendell L. Willkie, the G. O. P. presidential nominee.

Republican leaders asserted that the Republican standard bearer, supported by a congress which truly reflected the will of the American people, would restore the essentials of Democracy which were lost or endangered during the years of the depression and the subsequent fumbling attempts toward recovery.

A part of the Republican program, they pointed out, is the return of a fair livelihood to farmers and city workers—a livelihood based on the standard of living that a free America is capable of supporting, unhampered by restrictive legislation and oppressive taxation.

The right to a high standard of living, Willkie has pointed out, is as much the heritage of American farmers and workers, as the right of free speech, freedom of assembly and freedom of religion and a free press.

American agriculture and American labor must assert itself, throwing off the yoke of New Dealism, and the odd theories of government it has sponsored, before true American democracy can be returned, the Republican presidential candidate said, and he is pledged to attain these objectives.

To make this program effective, the election of Dwight Green, as governor of Illinois, is also urged, and Willkie has pointed to the necessity of a congress pledged to his objectives and has pleaded for the election of C. Wayland Brooks as U. S. senator and the Republican nominees for congress, Chauncey W. Reed from this district and William G. Stratton and Stephen A. Day from the state-at-large.

Jewish Holidays Affect Market Says John Clay Co.

A series of Jewish holidays beginning this week and running thru October will likely result in a hot and cold set of markets covering good killing cattle this month, but the available supply of kinds suitable for outlet on kosher slaughter account is seasonally small and no adverse disturbance of prices is anticipated while the run continues moderate.

The range cattle movement is on in full swing, with replacement kinds predominating. Cost of stocker and feeding steers has undergone a downward revision during the past two weeks, prevailing quotations being down 50 to 75c during that period. The late decline brought values down to a basis like that in force a year ago, while the killer steer average price shows a gain of $1 compared with the same time in 1939.

Trade in hogs has been featured by the swing in buyers favor to heavier weights, as light weight spring farrowed pigs now are forming a predominant quota of arrivals. The hog market is receiving little aid from export trade. Shipments of pork abroad in August were a little larger than in July, but were smallest on record for an August. Lard exports in August were smallest for any month in three years.

Fat lamb values have not been fluctuating much of late, while feeder lamb demand has been holding consistently strong on a short supply. Wool prices of late have been hardening, not sensationally but enough to lend optimism to lamb feeders. Barely 10 per cent of the 1940 clip is left in western hands. The dressed market, however, has not been satisfactory and with slaughter during September about on a par with a year earlier lamb salesmen have been unable to mark up prices.

Do We Want "One-Man" Government In America?

Ever since Mr. Roosevelt went into office the trend has been toward "ONE-MAN" government. He began by asking Congress for practically "dictatorial" powers. These were granted to him. Since then he has not only REFUSED to relinquish any of these powers, but he has constantly asked for more. He has usurped the powers of Congress, he has loaded the Supreme Court, he has taken over the rights of states and local communities. Never before in all our history has a president held such power. Mr. Roosevelt himself has publicly BOASTED of the power he has built up—powers which he has said "might be dangerous" if wielded by ANY OTHER MAN. There is only one way to stop this trend toward "ONE-MAN" government. That way is to vote AGAINST Mr. Roosevelt and return the government to the people. IT MUST BE DONE NOW!

Challenges Reed To Debate

Edgar O. Eakin, Democratic nominee for Congress from the 11th District, has written the following letter to Hon. Chauncey W. Reed, Republican nominee, challenging him to a debate:

"As the nominee of the Democratic Party for Congress from the 11th District, I am your opponent at the general election Nov. 5th. It appears to me that these are extraordinary times—times when men who aspire to represent this district in Congress should take the voters into their confidence and declare themselves clearly and unequivocally.

"The Republican Party nationally has endorsed the idea of opposing candidates appearing on the same platform and staging a person-to-person debate on the issues involved.

"You and I cannot compel the candidates for President to enter into an arrangement of this kind, but there is nothing to prevent our making such an agreement between ourselves.

"To bring the matter to a head, I hereby challenge you to meet me in public debate, before the voters of the 11th Congressional district at your convenience and at the time and place you name.

"If you feel that you can only spare four evenings, I would suggest one debate in each of the four counties comprising this district, Du Page, McHenry, Kane and Will. If you have more time, I would greatly enjoy this schedule being increased to 10, 12 or even more meetings.

"In view of the ease with which

ECONOMICAL NEW AUTOMATIC GAS HOUSE-HEATER

Does Away With All

Fall and Spring

Furnace Fire-Building

PROVIDES UNIFORM TEMPERATURES
IN UNCERTAIN WEATHER

★ Fit it into furnace door for use in Fall and Spring—remove it in one minute when steady cold weather sets in—uses small amount of gas. Hundreds now in use.

DETACHABLE...hangs on hook or nail when not in use. Does not interfere with regular Winter furnace operation.

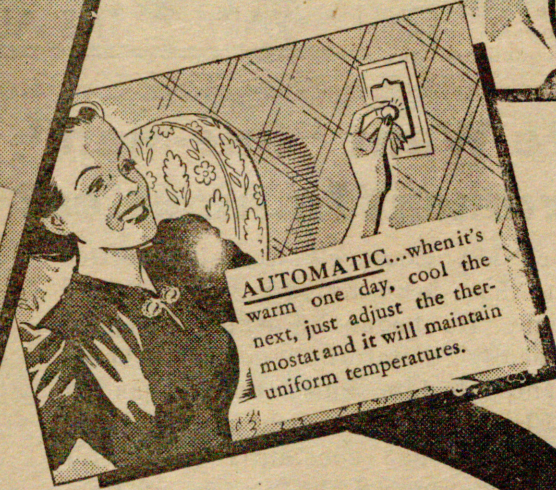

LIGHTWEIGHT...less than 12 pounds. Easy to attach or remove. No pipes to disconnect—no wrenches required.

ONLY $49.50 INSTALLED

...INCLUDING AUTOMATIC THERMOSTAT CONTROL

[Only $1.50 Down. Balance, plus small carrying charge, payable on your Gas Service bill in a choice of convenient plans arranged to fit your budget.]

AUTOMATIC...when it's warm one day, cool the next, just adjust the thermostat and it will maintain uniform temperatures.

No fuel is wasted, since it operates only when necessary. As soon as steady cold weather sets in, the unit can be easily removed and a regular fire started.

EXPENSIVE? Not at all—for not only can you use it as little or as much as you want, but you also enjoy a special low house-heating gas rate.

Now, before changeable Fall weather comes, get full particulars on this remarkable new automatic house heater. Write or phone your Public Service office.

Now thousands can enjoy automatic house heat in Fall and Spring...thanks to an amazing new portable unit developed by gas engineers.

DESIGNED to fit in the door of warm air furnaces or hot water boilers, it can be easily installed in a minute or less without any alterations to the grate or fire-box. Then your Fall heating worries are over, for an adjustable thermostat control operates the furnace automatically.

ORLAND PARK

LAUREL CAMP RNA 41 YEARS OLD SEPT. 26th

Laurel Camp No. 1796 of the Royal Neighbors of America were hosts to 48 visiting neighbors on Thursday evening, Sept. 26th when they celebrated their 41st Birthday Anniversary in the auditorium of the Orland Park school. Mokena was represented by 13, Harvey by 11, Tinley Park by 18, Logan Square by 4 and Garfield Park by 2 representatives and 32 members of Laurel Camp were present.

Mrs. Anne Colley, State Juvenile Supervisor and Mrs. Carrie Kreiger, District State Supervisor were present and were received with the honors of the camp. Lucille Ricketts, Mae Reish, Lucille Uthe, Violet Cooper, Mildred Doctor and Sylvia Stigers acted as escorts and as each of the visiting dignitaries was received and escorted, Harriet Gee sang appropriate songs of welcome.

Two charter members, Mrs. Elai Myrick and Mrs. Katherine Cox, together with Mrs. Marie Smith and Mrs. Christina Rust with membership records of 38 and 36 years respectfully, were escorted and welcomed to the song, "When I am too Old to Dream". The visiting State officers were presented with corsages and the charter and old time members each received a plant. Several officers and past officers of the visiting delegations were presented and extended their congratulations to Laurel Camp on its 41st Anniversary.

The three latest brides of the camp, Lucille Cooper Ricketts, Violet Jacobson Cooper, and Lucille Reish Uthe were each presented with the customary R.N.A. "brides blanket."

An impressive exemplification of the ritual work was done by the officers and degree team of Laurel Camp and brought forth many expressions of commendation from the visitors.

Following the meeting, bunco and cards were played and refreshments were served chief among which was a mammoth birthday cake with the R.N.A. emblem.

ORLAND SCHOOL NEWS

John Leonard Betts of Evanston, graduate of Northwestern University who formerly was a teacher at Lyles, joined the teaching staff of the Orland Park Junior High school Wednesday of this week for part time. Mr. Betts is working on his Master's degree. He succeeded Roger Bishton who resigned the past week.

His resignation has been regretfully accepted by the Board of Education. During his short stay in the Orland school, his work has been very satisfactory and he made many friends among the students and teachers.

The Wabash depot in Orland Park which has had three operators stationed there in 24 hour service for the first time in almost 60 years, closed for the night, beginning last week.

The reason for this is that the 2 extra operators working during the night shift have been transferred to the new telegraph office erected on the north side of Keane Ave., bridge. The Wabash railroad double track system begins in Orland Park but since the Keane Ave. bridge is being rebuilt the double track switch has been located further down the track on the opposite side of the bridge, since there is only a single track running through Orland now.

Soon as the new bridge is completed which it is thought will be about Christmas time, the Wabash depot in Orland will again have 24 hour service.

The Orland PTA will meet Thursday evening, Oct. 10 in the school auditorium. This will be the second program in the years series and will be dedicated to Safety. Through the cooperation of Mr. Norman Jeggs and Kendrick Harger, of the District Engineer's office of the D. C. Highway dept., a full even-Stat program will be dedicated to ings problems on our state highway safety and will be presented by Of-ways Edw. Emond of the State ficer ay safety patrol.

highwicer Emond is well known in Ond district. He is one of the 5 Officers of the state to make a ofudy of causes for accidents, and stis findings are very interesting.

Sound films will also be given. High school students are especially invited to hear Officer Emond's talk.

Pres. Mollie Reish wishes to start the business meeting promptly at 8 p.m. so as to have as much time for the program as possible. Every one in the community is invited to hear the talk of vital interest to all.

Laughran Questions Burke . . .

Over radio station WCLS last Monday night, Francis J. Laughran, candidate for state's attorney of Will County on the Democratic ticket, put Mr. Burke, present state's attorney before the bar of public opinion. It was the most unique method of campaigning that has ever been heard of in Will County politics.

Court Scene

The scene opened with the announcer taking the place of a court bailiff. You could hear his gavel rap for order followed by the words Hear ye, Hear ye, Hear ye, this court of Public Opinion is now in session, the case of the people of

Francis J. Laughran

Will County vs. Jas. E. Burke, present States Attorney, with Francis J. Laughran, candidate for State's attorney representing the people.

Citizens Are Judge and Jury

Then Mr. Laughran made his opening address, stating that the people of Will County were to act as both Judge and Jury. He then went on to say that this was a case arising out of the charge that Jas. E. Burke, present states attorney, had so mishandled and conducted the office of states attorney of Will County during the past four years, that he does not deserve re-election.

Charges Backed by Proof

He further stated that all charges and statements made by him (Mr. Laughran) shall be based entirely upon facts, facts (which he said would conclusively show that Mr. Burke willfully neglected his duties as states attorney.

Cites Campaign of Four Years Ago Four years ago, Mr. Luoghran stated: "I was your opponent for the office of states attorney. The situation now is identical in that we are again opposing each other for the same office." Mr. Laughran further stated that at that time over the radio and at various meetings throuth the county, he stated certain facts regarding the issues in the campaign, but Mr. Burke avoided those issues by saying he would run the racketeers and hoodlums out of this county and that vice and gambling and slot machines would be banished from Will County as long as he remained States Attorney.

LOUGHNAN CITES FACTS

"Let me read you an article, Mr. Burke, in part, that appeared in a Joliet newspaper under date of November 5, 1936" Mr. Laughran said. Continuing he stated "this was the Thursday after election, which in part reads as follows: 'Upon consideration of calm thought, we feel that the public was given a good job of political kidding, the slogan of 'drive out the hoodlums and racketeers' was an apt one, framed backed up by positive facts. If my

He went to the island on the steamer "City of Hancock". Arthur was there until Sept. 30, 1940. He had a wonderful time those months.

and devised to get votes, it could not have been anything else. Still quoting from said article, "however the people should know, that on election day, every known racketeer and hoodlum of the county was found doing their bit for Mr. Burke. Maybe Mr. Burke did not know it, yet I never know a fellow looking for votes, who did not know just who was supporting him, and just who was active in his support."

Disregarded Family's Feeling

"Four years ago Mr. Burke", Mr. Laughran continued "you disregarded the feelings of my family by associating every questionable character in Will County with me. And that you, Mr. Burke deliberately falsified when you made these statements. I am going to treat you more kindly, Mr. Burke, than you did me. I promise you and the good people of this county, that I will never utter one false statement against you, but I will conduct my campaign against you on facts, charges are to the point, you have no one to blame but yourself. The reason I started my campaign at an early date was in order that you would have ample time in which to deny any charges that are made against you and your silence in answering these charges will condemn you in the eyes of the people of Will County.

Loughran Questions Burke

"Is it not true Mr. Burke, that you have absented yourself from your office weeks at a time? Is it not true that members of the county board have tried to see you on matters pertaining to the county business, but for days at a time could not find you in your office. Is it not a known fact, Mr. Burke, that a great many citizens of Joliet and the rural sections would have to make many trips to your office in order to obtain an interview with you? Is it not a fact that your continued absence has caused the grand juries to be adjourned from day to day at a cost to the taxpayers of over $120 per day? Mr. Burke, is it not a known fact, that you neglected your court work to such an extent, that the judge of the circuit court of Will County, for the first time in its history, insisted that you present a doctor's certificate, stating whether or not you were home sick with the flu?"

Full Time Service

Mr. Loughran went on to say that, if the people of Will County would honor him by electing him States Attorney, he would give them full time service. Mr. Loughran asked all the citizens of Will County to listen to him over radio station WCLS in Joliet, every Monday and Thursday nights at 6:45 P. M., at which time he would again put Mr. Burke before the bar of public opinion and that he will bring out the true facts regarding Mr. Burke's record, with the good citizens of Will County as both judge and jury.

HARVEST HOME PARTY
(See Recipes Below)

Household News

By Eleanor Howe

Everybody enjoys singing a song of harvest home, even if they haven't had a personal stake in bringing in the crops. At your harvest home party, if you follow tradition, you'll have cornucopias filled with fall fruits and garlands of wheat or grasses grouped at the center of your festive board. Little dolls dressed in overalls and aprons make amusing favors.

Farmer in the dell, blindman's buff, puss in corner, and the never to be forgotten game of charades, in which the participants can give their all in dramatic acting, are traditional juvenile game favorites that are likely to give the grown-up contingent an equally good time. You may want to do a little bit of folk dancing, with the old time fiddler, the pianist, and even an accordionist hitting off "country" songs.

When it comes to refreshments, you may decide upon anything from a big picnic spread to cookies and a refreshing beverage. A fruit pie is the most appropriate happy ending to your harvest home feast. Just a hint to you homemakers if you have trouble keeping the delicious juice in a pie; quick cooking tapioca may be used as a thickener, thus eliminating the traditional hazard of runaway juice.

Doughnuts and hot spicy cider are always an attractive and favorite combination to serve at a party of this type. Or you may like to use the old oaken bucket for serving punch.

Cherry Pie.

2½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 No. 2 can sour cherries (2½ cups)
¾ cup cherry juice and 2 tablespoons water (to make 1 cup)
1 recipe pastry
Combine quick-cooking tapioca, sugar, salt, butter, cherries, and cherry juice; let stand about 15 minutes. Line a 9-inch pie plate with half of pastry rolled ¼ inch thick, allowing pastry to extend 1 inch beyond edge of plate. Fold edge back to form rim. Fill with cherry mixture. Moisten edge of pastry with cold water; arrange lattice of pastry strips across top. Flute rim with fingers. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) 15 minutes, then decrease heat to moderate (350 degrees) and bake 30 minutes longer.

Rich Drop Doughnuts.

(Makes 1½ dozen)
2 eggs
6 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons shortening (melted)
2 cups flour
¾ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
6 tablespoons milk
Beat eggs until very light, and gradually beat in the sugar. Add melted shortening. Sift together the flour, salt, baking powder and nutmeg, and add to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Drop from a teaspoon into deep fat heated to 375 degrees, and fry until well browned. Drain on unglazed paper. Sprinkle with confectioner's or powdered sugar.

Hot Spiced Cider.

2 quarts cider
1 cup brown sugar
1 6-inch stick cinnamon
6 whole cloves
1 teaspoon allspice
Add spices and sugar to cider; place in kettle and let simmer over heat (not boil) for 15 minutes. Strain and serve hot in small glasses. Add a little grated nutmeg, if desired.

Baked Ham.

1 whole ham
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1½ cups sweet cider
1½ cups brown sugar
½ cup orange juice
Wipe ham with a damp cloth and place in an uncovered roaster, skin side up. Roast in a very slow oven (300 degrees) allowing 25 minutes per pound of ham. About ½ hour before the ham has finished baking take from oven. Remove skin and pour off all excess fat. Cook cider and sugar together to thick syrup stage. Add orange juice and pour mixture over ham. Dot with whole cloves. Return to oven and bake ½ hour longer, basting frequently with liquid in pan.

Old Fashioned Jelly Roll.

4 eggs
¾ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup cake flour
1 cup jelly
Break the eggs into a bowl and allow them to warm to room temperature. Then combine eggs with baking powder and salt. Set the bowl of eggs in a smaller bowl in which you have poured hot water. With a Dover beater, beat the eggs, baking powder, and salt mixture until it is thick and light. Gradually beat in the sugar and continue beating until very light and fluffy. Remove the bowl from the hot water and, with a spoon or spatula, fold in the vanilla and the flour which has been sifted several times. Line a 10 by 15 inch jelly roll pan with buttered wax paper, and pour the batter into the pan. Bake for about 12 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees). Remove cake from pan and turn onto a towel which has been dusted with confectioner's sugar. Pull off paper and trim edges from the cake. Roll, and cool. When the cake has cooled, unroll it and spread with jelly which has been whipped to make it spread more readily.

Date Nut Cake.

3 cups raisins
2 cups dates (cut fine)
1 cup pecan nut meats (cut fine)
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup boiling water
Put fruit and nuts into bowl; dissolve soda in boiling water and pour over the fruit. Let stand while preparing the following batter mixture:
¾ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
2¾ cups cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
Cream butter and add sugar gradually. Add egg and mix well. Add fruit mixture. Mix and sift all dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk and vanilla extract. Place batter in three well-greased layer-cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven (365 degrees) for approximately 35 minutes. When cool, put layers together with boiled icing to which chopped dates and raisins have been added. Then ice with the plain boiled icing.

Chocolate Nut Gingerbread.

¾ cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
2 ounces chocolate (melted)
2 eggs
1½ cups cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons ginger
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
½ cup nut meats (chopped fine)
Cream butter thoroughly and add the sugar slowly. Add melted chocolate and eggs, one at a time, beating well. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with the milk, beating between each addition. Add nut meats. Bake as a loaf cake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for approximately 45 minutes. Serve with whipped cream, sprinkled with cinnamon, or with chocolate fudge icing.

Magic Fritted Macaroons.

(Makes about 30)
¾ cup sweetened condensed milk
2 cups coconut (shredded)
1 cup dates (chopped fine)
Mix together the sweetened condensed milk and coconut. Add finely chopped dates. Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet, about 1 inch apart. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 10 minutes, or until a delicate brown. Remove from pan at once.

LUKE AND HIS GOSPEL

LESSON TEXT—Luke 1:1-4; Acts 1:1; Colossians 4:14; II Timothy 4:11a.
GOLDEN Text—It seemed good to me also . . . to write . . . that thou mightest know the certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been instructed.—Luke 1:3, 4.

Reading a book is a privilege and should be an illuminating and stirring experience. What a pity that so few read good books in our day! To study a book is a far more fruitful and interesting experience. Few are the books worthy of prolonged and repeated study. Therein do we find one of the great differences between books of men and God's Book—the Bible. Again and again we turn to its pages and find its truth inexhaustible, ever interesting, informing, and soul-stirring in its beauty and power.

In reading any book, we want to know who wrote it, what kind of a man he was, why he wrote, what he wrote about, and what kind of a book he wrote. We recognize that the Holy Spirit is the real author of the Word (II Tim. 3:16; II Pet. 1:21), but He chose and used human writers. As we begin a six-month study of the Gospel according to Luke, we properly ask about both the author and his writing.

I. The Writer—Luke.

Our information regarding Luke is found in the New Testament, in the introductory words of the books he wrote (Luke and Acts) and in the writings of his friend and co-worker, Paul. There we learn of his

1. Nationality and Religion. His name, "Luke," is a contraction of the Greek name "Loukios" and, since we know from Colossians 4:11 and 14 that he was not "of the circumcision," we know he was a Gentile and evidently a Greek. When, where and by whom he was won to Christ, we do not know. We do know that this intelligent Greek, versed in all the philosophies of the perfection of personality, found in Christ the fulfillment of all his desires and dreams.

2. Profession—A Physician (Col. 4:14). See also medical terms in all his writings. Luke wrote scholarly Greek; he was familiar with the life of a sailor (Acts 27); he joined with his scientific accuracy an esthetic culture often revealed in his writings.

3. His Friends. A man's friends indicate his character. Luke had a close friend and possibly a patron, "his excellency" Theophilus (Acts 1:1; Luke 1:3), evidently a man of standing and ability. He was also a close friend and fellow laborer with perhaps the greatest man of all time, Paul the apostle.

4. His Activities. Fellow missionary with Paul (Acts 16:11; 20:5, 6, and elsewhere), physician, preacher of the gospel, and author.

II. The Book—the Gospel by Luke.

To have written a book may be a doubtful distinction, but to have been used of the Holy Spirit to write such a book as this Gospel—what an honor and privilege! Following Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, we note:

1. Its Subject. "The Word" (Luke 1:2). He wrote about the perfect personality of Jesus Christ, but he, like John (John 1:14), recognized that it was the divine and eternal Word which became flesh in the perfect humanity of Jesus Christ.

2. Its Sources. He doubtless read what many had written (Luke 1:1). He also talked with "eyewitnesses" (Luke 1:2) and "ministers of the word" who had known the Lord. His sources were excellent and unimpeachable.

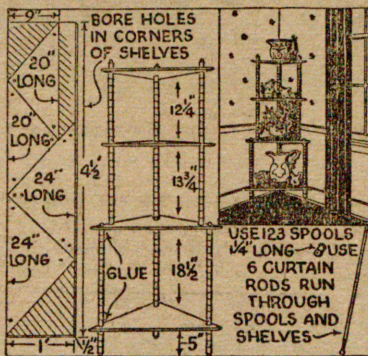

3. Its Method. He "traced the course" (for so does the R. V. properly translate Luke 1:3) of the material he gathered; that is, he did original research and investigation, always under the control and guidance of the Holy Spirit. This resulted in a placing of all things "in order." After gathering, sifting, investigating, the Holy Spirit saw that Luke put all things in proper order (see I Cor. 14:33, 40).

4. Its Purpose. Luke wanted Theophilus (and others who read his Gospel) to know with "certainty" (Luke 1:4) those things in which he was already instructed by word of mouth. Important matters must always be written down, carefully and in order. To pass things on by word of mouth inevitably results in change, conscious or unconscious. So desperately vital a matter as our eternal salvation calls for writings, exact and complete. Luke, who had a knowledge of all these things, was moved by the Holy Spirit to write, and thus we have this glorious Gospel which we are to study from now until the end of March, 1941.

A closing word. A 12-page booklet, Can America Be Saved? by the writer of these notes, will be sent free on request. Use the address above. A post card will do, but if convenient, enclose postage. Your comments or suggestions regarding the lessons will also be appreciated.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

A HOME Demonstration Agent wrote me the other day to say that many of the women in her group had made the spool shelves described in SEWING BOOK 3 and the end tables of spools in Book 5. "One member has an interesting collection of pitchers and would like to make a corner whatnot for them," the letter continued.

Well, here it is ladies! With the collection of pitchers all in place. The sketch gives all dimensions and instructions. The triangle shelves are cut from one board as shown at the left. The second shelf from the bottom needs six holes. All the others have three holes each. The design may be varied by using larger spools at the bottom for the first spool above and below each shelf. Use extension curtain rods to fit the holes in the spools. A little glue between spools makes the whatnot rigid. When finished, it may be stained or painted.

NOTE: These homemaking booklets are a service to our readers and No. 5 contains a description of the other numbers; as well as 32 pages of clever ideas with all directions fully illustrated. They are 10c each to cover cost and mailing. Send order to:

Put ORANGES in School Day Lunches!

Everyone likes to peel and eat an orange! Or to sip a glass of the fresh juice. Just to enjoy the delicious, fragrant taste!

And nothing else that's so delicious is so good for you! For, says the Department of Agriculture, hardly half the families in America get enough vitamins and minerals to permit the best of health.

And oranges are your richest everyday source of vitamin C and a good source of vitamin B₁. They also supply vitamins A and G, calcium, phosphorus and iron.

So put a healthful Sunkist Orange in every lunch box. Let health begin at breakfast with BIG glasses of fresh orange juice for all the family. Order a supply of Sunkist Oranges—the pick of California's best-ever crop of wonderfully juicy Valencias.

500 Years of Printing

This week is National Newspaper Week and 1940 also marks the 500th year of the invention of printing from movable type.

When Johan Gutenberg invented his movable types, it meant the enlightenment of mankind, for since this invention was made, books, periodicals, newspapers and a vast variety has been made possible and this has made the advancement of knowledge and civilization possible.

The first book printed after movable type came into being, was the Bible. Religion was aided wonderfully by this invention. Without it we would not have the culture we enjoy to-day. Printing has made the dissemination of knowledge in all languages all over the globe, so on this 500th anniversary of printing we should stop and think how much we owe to the printed word today.

I'LL TELL YOU WHY WE SELL 4-SQUARE LUMBER!

Confidence is one of the greatest assets in business. It's the important element which influences you in deciding where you prefer to trade—where you are sure of getting the best value.

The right kind of lumber is important to you because good lumber is important to sound, durable, economical building.

... but you can't be expected to know all there is to know about lumber any more than you can know all there is to know about many of the other things you buy. We all buy pretty much on faith—faith in the dealer and faith in the manufacturer.

In Weyerhaeuser 4-SQUARE Lumber you have a wide variety of species and grades for every building purpose. Each piece or package is clearly trade-marked by the manufacturer. That's your guarantee and our guarantee of good value. In this branded lumber, there are extra values which you can see at a glance. For instance, each piece is smooth and square and cut to exact length, ready for use. Furthermore, 4-SQUARE costs no more than ordinary lumber. These are a few of the reasons why we sell 4-SQUARE. When you see this lumber you, too, will know why you want 4-SQUARE in your building.
